

Eligible new community buildings/asset types

Table 3: Eligible buildings and asset types: New Community Buildings
Community, Culture and Recreation Facilities	Mobile Community Structures	Indigenous only
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Community centres</li> <li>• Public sports and recreational facilities</li> <li>• Cultural buildings</li> <li>• Child and youth centres</li> <li>• Adult community learning centres</li> <li>• Seniors' centres</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Mobile health clinics</li> <li>• Mobile libraries</li> <li>• Mobile youth service facilities</li> </ul>	Indigenous health and social infrastructure facilities, including: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Community health centres</li> <li>• Clinics</li> <li>• Paramedic facilities</li> <li>• Long-term care/Elders' lodges</li> <li>• Family violence and homeless shelters</li> </ul> Indigenous education facilities, including: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Schools</li> <li>• Universities and colleges</li> <li>• Early childhood/Daycare</li> <li>• Adult learning centres</li> </ul>

Ineligible for the Construction of New Community Buildings:

- Administrative buildings
- Hospitals, police, fire, paramedic/ambulatory stations (except Indigenous facilities specified as eligible)
- Daycare centres as designated by Provincial and Territories (except Indigenous facilities specified as eligible)
- Shelters (except Indigenous facilities specified as eligible)
- Multi-unit housing and hospices
- Post-secondary facilities, including their recreational facilities (except Indigenous facilities specified as eligible)
- Community health and wellness facilities (e.g., Community health centres, community greenhouses, etc.) (except Indigenous facilities specified as eligible)
- Projects to be undertaken on a federally-owned building